15. Run Clubs

Description of the project

There are number of clubs you can run in your school or college or society or company. Those clubs can definitely benefit the students and citizens. Some of the clubs you can start are

1. Chess Club: Arrange classes from professionals, conduct tournaments, enroll the best to tournaments outside. Circulate the chess books with avid chess club members. Arrange chess expert's speeches that shall boost the club members for practicing more. Raise funds for your club and appoint a coach who shall put all of you in right direction raising the spirit across the members.
2. Book Club: Announce a book / books every week to be read, declare a date to discuss those books with your peers. Organize speeches on the books for public. Bring experts from outside the book club, who can be famous book authors or university professors. When a book is about to release, invite the authors to your club.

3. Magazine Club: Pen is mightier than sword. Write your mission statement. Collect the information going on in your school/college/society, publish them and circulate either through printed media or electronic media. If necessary take the permission of the content from the people and file those permissions. Respect the copy right and never publish something that shall affect the organizations. Encourage the right talent and invite articles from others. Feel responsible for every content that you write or publish. Do not include unnecessary gossips that distract the mission statement.
4. Social Service Club: This is for those who love 'Power of giving'. It is great club that helps in learning leadership qualities for yourself and then for your community. You stand inspiration for others to follow your path. Declare an event for the society, work collectively and achieve them.
5. Math Club: This is for those who love math and explore fun in it. Decide the competitions that your group want to participate/aim for. Get the syllabus, divide among yourselves and each week, one of you start teaching. Participate in quiz competitions, examinations. Publish / advertise your achievements. Remember participation is also an achievement. You can invite one of your parents to teach as well, or bring an expert occasionally. Key for success is, communicating your vision to appropriate audience. Raise funds for your club, build a library for yourself. Conduct mock tests and record your scores.
6. Science Club: Engaging yourself in science is fun. Procure some starter science kits from Amazon; engage your club in building different experiments. Document every experiment with assumptions and results. Procure books in understanding the principles and challenge your club in going beyond. Arrange guest lecturers with the help of known people/school teachers, if they cannot make it ask PFI. PFI will help you. Attend science workshops and science fairs. Document the models your club likes from these workshops and science fairs. Spread the knowledge to other Science Clubs. Keep your goal of researching something new for your next generations.
7. Music Club: Music is divine and everyone who learns music their soul becomes pure. Form a band; rehearse as if you are going to become the best. Prepare bank of performances and show to the public as it demands. Band can be formed to include a singer and few instruments. Make a right balance. Use your energy to raise funds and help charities.
8. Drama / Dance Club: Drama is an art of expression; it is never wrong time to enter into Drama. Introduce yourself to Drama at young age will give enough time to learn the art and excel as you progress. Form a club of writer, director, choreographer, singer, costume designer and artists. Rehearse few plots with good messages, build your bank. Express yourself through stage shows and when you get ability, raise funds for charity.

9. You can practically form any club that suits your interest and grow together. Also extend your expertise to next generations when you are capable.

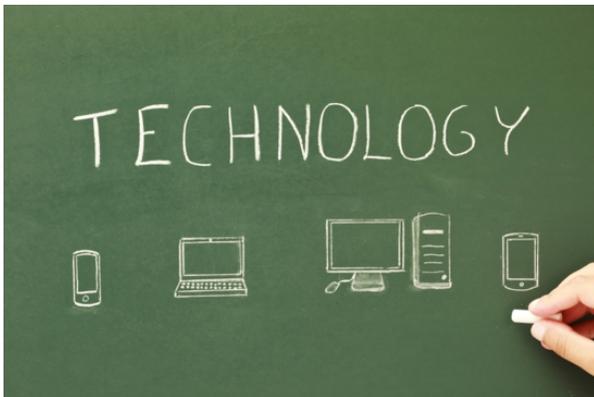

Some of the other clubs may be

- a. Sports Club    b. Arts Club    c. Astronomy Club

How you can achieve?

1. Write your mission statement along with phases that include preparation and execution. Document rules of engagement and dates/times of the club.
2. Borrow a facility that shall comprise a room. If you do not get dedicated room exclusive for your activity, borrow it as a shared place.
3. Nominate the management for the club. Small is beautiful, start with small group. If there is competition, conduct elections. See that at least one adult or higher official will be part of the management. That adds the value to your club and brings discipline to the club.
4. Advertise them appropriately. Use notice boards.
5. Invite members with membership fees. Put nominal fees that shall fulfill your running cost. Do not think of making profits from this. If you get surplus then spend it for noble cause.
6. Engage them with discipline which is very important.

16. Introduce a New Technology

Description of the project

Technology can save us and every one of us wants to get ourselves updated with new trends that shall boost our career. Everything surrounds technology, once adopted would be considered as developed institution or society or state or country.
